Andrew Knack's Post

Andrew Knack
January 16 ·

RESIDENTIAL SNOW CLEARING WILL NOT PAUSE‼️

Edmontonians, you may have been notified that neighbourhood blading would pause over the weekend, however, I want to assure you that that will NOT happen.

So far, 43% of communities have had their blading completed. Given the demand and changing weather conditions, I spoke with Council and we agreed that we must keep crews active until all the local roads are safe and easy to access. I called the City Manager to take the appropriate next steps.

Here is what you can expect:

- Next 24 Hours (Until 7pm Saturday): Crews will work exclusively on alleys and other urgent safety items.
- At 7:00pm on Saturday: Crews will continue with neighbourhood blading until the job is done.

A full schedule for all remaining communities will go live soon.

If you have a vehicle parked on a roadway, please ensure it is moved so that crews can clear snow and ice effectively and efficiently.

Lastly, I want to thank our crews and service workers for their dedicated efforts in keeping our roads safe, especially considering the large snowfall we experienced.

